1 About

Ntaria is the name given to the parcel of land which includes Hermannsburg, site of the former mission which was established by German Lutheran missionaries in 1877.

Hermannsburg was the home of the famous artist Albert Namatjira. Born on the mission in 1902, Namatjira met artist Rex Battarbee in 1934 and the result was a series of paintings in Central Australia which evoked the beauty of the region and contributed to interstate interest in the region.

The mission responded to modern changes in 1975 when after requests from the Arranda people, the institutional structures were removed. In 1982 the land was handed back to traditional owners and divided into five separate areas including the Ntaria Land Trust on which the township stands.

The Hermannsburg community is home to the Western Arranda people of Central Australia, located 130kms west of Alice Springs along Larapinta Drive.

1.1 Population

In the 2016 Census, there were 605 people in Hermannsburg (State Suburbs) Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people made up 89.9% of the population. The median age of people in Hermannsburg (State Suburbs) was 29 years.

1.2 Power and Water

The community is connected to the mains power supply from Alice Springs. Water is supplied from a series of bores along the adjacent range.
